June 30, 2016 – San Carlos, CA – At approximately 11:50 a.m. today, a contractor performing some trenching work at Tierra Linda Middle School, located on Dartmouth Avenue in San Carlos, accidentally hit the PG&E natural gas line located there. The Fire Department and the Sherriff's Department immediately responded. Due to the odor of gas, some students at the summer camp held at the school and 15 residences adjacent to the incident were temporarily evacuated and a shelter in place notice was issued for a portion of the surrounding area. The leak was capped at approximately 1:30 p.m. and the restrictions were released. No one was injured and PG&E crews are working to repair the line by 5:00 p.m. tonight, although there will be no gas service to the School until next week. There are no longer any street impacts in the area and the camp will be open tomorrow.
